Letter of Recommendation for Diatom Enterprises

As chief architect of EventBoard mobile, I had been building cloud based native mobile products (Windows Phone, iOS and Android), and felt there must be a more cost effective way of doing native phone development. When I found Xamarin, it seemed like a perfect match: native performance, native look and feel, but shared .NET code. I knew that the Diatom Xamarin team had done the .NET Rocks apps, and was impressed, so when the next mobile project came along, I reached out to them for a first project.

The project was for a large provider of memory products in the bay area, and they were on the same quest, cost effective but high performance native cross platform mobile development, with shared code. Diatom built iOS and Android versions of the system. It was a big success, and the responsible person at the client received a promotion to Director of Mobile Services.

Following that success story with Diatom, I have now run a series of successful mobile cross platform projects with Diatom and Xamarin technology.

Diatom is a pleasure to do business with. They do high quality work, are highly motivated, and self-managing, with tools, processes, experience and good people. They work hard to make the time difference disappear and are very flexible on scheduling. Estimates have been realistic and dependable.

I would highly recommend looking at Xamarin in your next cross platform mobile project, and Diatom are the people to go to for a timely delivery and quality result!
